Amaral and their band will be on stage at the emblematic Teatro Cervantes to perform their songs at the Malaga Film Festival closing concert.
“We love cinema and the city of Malaga, where we have great friends. We will leave the studio for a few days and play at a concert that for us is very special. In our music you can find numerous references to cinema, films and real and invented characters. It is always a source of inspiration. This concert will be a way of thanking Cinema for everything it has given us.”

Eva Amaral and Juan Aguirre met in 1992, when they began to perform in venues in Zaragoza and Madrid, making a name for themselves on the national independent scene without having any album out on the market.
In their 25-year career since the release of their first LP, they have published 8 studio albums and are currently preparing what will be their new record.
Amaral has received numerous awards and acknowledgements, including the Gold Medal of the Performing Arts, the National Award for Contemporary Music, Ondas, MTV, MTV Europe, Music Awards and a nomination for the Latin Grammys.
Amaral is an example that it is possible to gain the support of the public and critics. Their way of understanding music and managing their career, based on commitment and freedom, have made them an indisputable reference in Spanish music.
